Goldstream adds SA man to board

CAMERON ENGLAND

GOLDSTREAM Mining – developing its Cairn Hill iron ore export mine near Coober Pedy – has appointed Stephen Hunt as a non-executive director.

Managing director Duncan McBain said Mr Hunt had “significant minerals marketing experience” gained from spending more than 16 years with the then BHP.

“Stephen resides in South Australia and has been a director of Australian Zircon, DCM Australia and more recently through his own trading business. Minerals and Metals Marketing,” Mr McBain said.

Mr Hunt “has been running the regulatory and logistics side of the feasibility study for Goldstream over the past year and is very familiar with Goldstream’s Cairn Hill magnetite iron/copper/gold project”.

Meanwhile Geoff Wallace has announced he will step down as an executive director of Goldstream to take up the position of managing director with Uranex, in which Goldstream is the major shareholder with a 39.5 per cent holding.
